1 (Case called)

2 MS. MCCALLUM: Good morning, your Honor. Sara
3 McCallum, Michael Ferrara, and Ian McGinley for the government.

4 THE COURT: Good morning to the three of you.

5 MR. SIEGAL: Good morning, your Honor. David Siegal
6 and Joseph Lawlor, Haynes and Boone, for the defendant, 7 Benjamin Wey, sitting here in the middle of us.

8 THE COURT: Good morning, Mr. Siegal, Mr. Lawlor, and 9 Mr. Wey.

10 We are here for a status and scheduling conference in 11 this matter. At the request of the parties, we took the month, 12 in light of the volume of discovery material, to assess an 13 appropriate schedule for motions and trial, and I am happy to 14 hear the request. I assume there has been conferral as to an 15 appropriate schedule.

16 Why don't we just begin, Ms. McCallum, with just a 17 confirmation of where we are in terms of production of the 18 discovery, including brief description of the quantity and 19 quality, and then we will turn to the joint proposal, if there 20 is one, for the schedule going forward.

21 MS. MCCALLUM: Certainly, your Honor.

22 As the court is aware, the discovery in this case has 23 been very, very voluminous. At this point, discovery has been 24 completed with the one exception, which isn't really an 25 exception, but we are providing a subset of some of the

FCDSWEYC

1 electronic search warrant results to the defense today or 2 tomorrow, whenever we get the hard drive from them to produce.
3 It is a reproduction of a subset of search warrant results.

4 THE COURT: Okay.

5 MS. MCCALLUM: The volume of discovery is in the 6 millions of documents. It is really enormous. It consists of 7 trading records, banking records, all of the electronic search 8 warrant results and so on. SEC transcripts have been provided 9 as well as FINRA testimony transcripts and documents from both 10 those entities, including the SEC database in this case.

11 In light of in particular, the incredible volume of 12 discovery, the parties propose a somewhat more lengthy motion 13 schedule than would normally think be imposed, but we think it 14 is warranted in this case. The proposal is that motions from 15 the defense be due approximately six months from now and the 16 date that we would propose to the court is May 27 that the 17 government have approximately a month to respond, June 24, and 18 that the defense then be able to submit its reply, if any, 19 July 15.

20 Then in terms of the trial date, proposed trial date, 21 the defense, we have conferred with the defense, their proposal 22 is that it be set for March of 2017. The government would 23 simply leave it to the court to determine what trial date makes 24 sense from its perspective in light of the proposed motion 25 schedule.

FCDSWEYC

1 THE COURT: Okay. Thank you.

2 Mr. Siegal, anything?

3 MR. SIEGAL: I don't really have anything to add to 4 that, your Honor. I would also note that, as I understand it, 5 there may be a superseder in the offing. I don't know what 6 schedule is for that. The defense has in mind incorporating 7 that piece of it into the schedule as well.

8 I'll just say that in terms of the trial schedule that 9 we are asking for, this is a case where the government needed 10 four years to investigate the case and go through the material 11 that they searched and seized no later than January of 2012.
12 We don't think that the schedule we are asking for is 13 unreasonably long.

14 THE COURT: Couple questions. Let me begin with 15 Ms. McCallum. The anticipated superseder, what is the time 16 frame for that?

17 MS. MCCALLUM: We are hopeful that that will happen 18 quickly, your Honor. Candidly, we are awaiting materials in 19 order to be able to return that superseder. The superseding 20 charges relate to potential tax charges.

21 THE COURT: Okay.

22 MS. MCCALLUM: We hope that is a matter of a month or 23 two.

24 THE COURT: I do think we should set a date for that.
25 Unless the government has an objection to that, we can set it

FCDSWEYC

1 for two months out.

2 MS. MCCALLUM: Well, the problem we have, your Honor, 3 is simply that we are sort of at the mercy of another country 4 producing documents to us.

5 THE COURT: It might help if you tell them you have a 6 court order date.

7 MS. MCCALLUM: That is certainly true, your Honor. I 8 suppose we would reserve the right to maybe, if it is 9 impossible to do it in two months, to come back to the court 10 and beg for more time.

11 THE COURT: You can always ask.

12 MS. MCCALLUM: Certainly.

13 THE COURT: Mr. Siegal, any objection?

14 MR. SIEGAL: No objection, your Honor.

15 THE COURT: Two months from now. We will have, if 16 there will be a superseding indictment, one that is 17 anticipated, it will happen on or before two months from now, 18 from today.

19 Mr. Siegal, based on your review thus far, are you in 20 a position to indicate whether there are any specific 21 anticipated motions?

22 MR. SIEGAL: Well, yes, your Honor. We are going to 23 get to one of the anticipated motions in a moment. I can start 24 now, if your Honor likes. So one of the motions we are 25 contemplating relates directly to how the search was done and

FCDSWEYC

1 what has been done with the documents since the search. There 2 were two corrections actually, your Honor, one undertaken in 3 the offices of New York, NYG Capitol in New York, which is an 4 office that Mr. Wey worked out of and one at Mr. Wey's family 5 home.

6 The search seems to in those searches gathered up 7 essentially every scrap of paper and every electronic device in 8 both locations with a couple of small exceptions that related 9 to privilege set aside that they agreed to at the time. I 10 understand that the government's rationale for literally taking 11 every electronic data byte available in both locations was that 12 it was too voluminous to wade through at the time on location.

13 We have a couple of motions relating to the search 14 warrants. First, on their face, we believe they were 15 unreasonably overbroad in the sense that they essentially asked 16 for every scrap of paper in the possession of my client and his 17 wife. In addition to that, even assuming the warrant on its 18 face wasn't unconstitutionally a general warrant, our position 19 is going to be the way that it was managed subsequent to the 20 seizure of that data was unconstitutionally unreasonably 21 overbroad. We received back some copies and some original 22 media back in 2012. When I say "we," talking about the 23 company, which had separate lawyers as well as Mr. Wey, but the 24 government retained copies of everything and still retains it 25 to this day.

FCDSWEYC

1 Our position is that violates the Constitution as 2 articulated in the Second Circuit's 2014 opinion in the Gandy
3 case. I can give you the citation for that, your Honor.

4 THE COURT: I am aware of the opinion.

5 MR. SIEGAL: All right. As I understand it, the 6 government ran a search back in 2012 based on search terms. We 7 don't know what their search terms were. We can guess at what 8 they were. We haven't yet seen the results of that search. I 9 know Ms. McCallum is planning on giving us a copy of that 10 search. I understand that they did another subsequent search 11 using different terms more recently and that they want to rerun 12 the search they did back in 2012 because they have discovered a 13 problem. Now I am wading into technology that I may be 14 speaking over my head here, but there is some problem with the 15 hash values assigned by the computer program that was run in 16 2012, and they have got those and they need to rerun that 17 search.

18 Our motions are going to be, in part, relating to 19 whether or not they ought to be able to rerun that search. We 20 object to them rerunning that search. We object to them having 21 run a new search in 2014 or 2015, whenever they ran that new 22 search against the full set of documents. We object to the 23 fact that they have been retained for almost four years at this 24 point. Our position is materials that were deemed not to be 25 covered by the search warrant on the basis of their own

FCDSWEYC

1 definition in the searches they did back in 2012, those would 2 have been purged and they weren't.

3 We believe we have a serious Fourth Amendment
4 violation in this case and we are going to be making a motion 5 on that point, at least. There is probably going to be 6 discovery motions as well, your Honor. It is my hope that we 7 can work out some of the discovery issues over the next several 8 months, and Ms. McCallum and I have a good working relationship 9 in terms of discussing these issues. I won't bother your Honor 10 with too many of the details this.

11 While Ms. McCallum is correct that we have received 12 transcripts of on-the-record testimony at the SEC and at FINRA, 13 we believe there is a number of witness interviews that we 14 ought to receive the notes for. We believe there is a good 15 deal of Brady and Giglio material located in the notes. We 16 don't have any of those yet. We don't think we ought to have 17 to wait until the eve of trial to receive information. That is 18 going to be part of our motion.

19 In addition, we will probably be making a motion for 20 bill of particulars, given how little specificity is in the 21 indictment. Again, these are issues that we may be able to 22 work out at some level with the government prior to making our 23 motion. That is in flux.

24 THE COURT: All right. I suppose one question that 25 comes to mind in thinking about the schedule is whether, even

FCDSWEYC

1 if I accept this sort of six-month time frame for motions, it
2 sounds like at least with the search, these motions, the Fourth 3 Amendment motions, those might be able to be brought 4 sooner than six months' time.

5 MR. SIEGAL: I'll speak to that, your Honor. In 6 addition to sort of the facial challenge that I have been 7 talking about, one of the things we are trying to determine is 8 what was known to the government back in 2011. As far as I 9 understand, this investigation began sometime in the middle of 10 2011, if not earlier than that. That wasn't included in the 11 search warrant affidavit.

12 We may end up having a Franks hearing with respect to 13 that, and I frankly want to put it all in one sets of papers.
14 I don't think we can make the second piece of if we have a much 15 better drive into the documentary evidence that was in the 16 possession of the agents, case agents, in the case. I think 17 there is, in particular, some legal theories in the search 18 warrant that have carried over into the indictment I think are 19 undermined by information that the government knew at the time 20 the application was made for the search warrant.

21 I am not in a position any earlier than what we are 22 talking about in order to make that set of motions. It seems 23 from an efficiency standpoint, one set of motions would just 24 make sense.

25 THE COURT: Okay. Just thinking through the schedule,

FCDSWEYC

I think I am comfortable setting the six-month date for the filing of all motions and the schedule that has been proposed. So the question in my mind is whether, in light of what is anticipated, which may be able to work some of it out, it sounds as if you won't work it all out, you might need some time, might need a hearing. I am just thinking in my own head as I sit here whether I want to set the trial date for March or something else.

MR. SIEGAL: Your Honor, we have thought this through a great deal in my offices and thought precisely about what your Honor is thinking about. Frankly, given all the issues, the complicated issues that we have got going on here, including issues that may relate to overseas evidence that we may have to go get on some sort of a joint basis if that is possible, so that may need your Honor's intervention as well. I just think it doesn't make sense to set the trial any earlier than that, given what has to be worked out.

Again, I'll just say again, when Ms. McCallum says there is millions of documents, that is no exaggeration. Just the SEC's production alone is three million documents. That includes, I would say, third-party documents from maybe 20, 30 different sources, from law firms, from banks, from underwriting firms, from securities accounts, from transfer agents. They have blue sheets. It is an enormous amount of material.

1 Then another piece that we are dealing with right now, 2 your Honor, we have gotten what could be regarded as 3 duplicative information at several different times. Part of 4 our project just over the last month or so, your Honor, which 5 is continuing, is trying to figure out a way not to look at the 6 same set of stuff two or three times. This is not a criticism 7 of the government, but we got images of 20, 30 electronic 8 devices back in 2012. We have gotten what purport to be 9 identical images in 2015, but we have to compare those to one 10 another to make sure, instead of looking at six million 11 documents, we only look at three million, and that project 12 alone is a technological shaping that we are still working 13 through.

14 This is not a clean process. We haven't really even 15 gotten to the stage that we are looking substantive through the 16 documents. What we are doing now is trying to find a way to 17 manage how to review them. I don't think there is any 18 exaggeration in terms of how much material we have to deal 19 with.

20 THE COURT: Ms. McCallum, to the best you can, if we 21 go to trial, how long a trial do you anticipate?

22 MS. MCCALLUM: Our best estimate is four to six weeks, 23 your Honor.

24 THE COURT: All right. I have some concerns about the 25 length of time. I continue to be persuaded that counsel are

FCDSWEYC

1 doing their best efforts to work through it and working 2 together where they can, and obviously it is both a 3 technological and substantive effort. I think what I'll do is 4 adopt the proposal that you have suggested.

5 Given the length of trial, I think we have to get it
6 on the calendar now. There is no other choice, otherwise it 7 will be significantly farther out in order to find four to six 8 weeks that I can get on my calendar and that you can get on 9 your calendar.

10 At face, I'll adopt the proposal because it appears 11 reasonable and consistent with what is needed to be done by 12 both sides as well as the court in resolving the anticipated 13 motions. The proposed motion schedule is hereby adopted to the 14 extent the defense will file motions. They had be filed on or 15 before May 27, 2016. Opposition by the government on or before 16 June 24. Reply, if any, July 15.

17 I'll say this, Mr. Siegel, with hopes that it would 18 move you to do so, if you can, if any aspects of those motions 19 can be brought sooner to give the court more time to resolve 20 them, that would be helpful, especially if the volume of 21 motions that you anticipate continues to be in the offing. You 22 have got your outside date.

23 MR. SIEGAL: Thank you very much, your Honor, 24 especially with respect to the discovery issues. We can try to 25 see if we can resolve those on an earlier schedule.

FCDSWEYC

1 THE COURT: Thank you. Trial we will set for -- the 2 first full week in March is March 6, 2017.

3 I set firm trial dates so that we can all do the work 4 that we need to do within the anticipated time and set our 5 expectations around it and help ensure a speedy trial can be 6 achieved. I do always say, barring exceptional circumstances, 7 the date we set for trial will be the date we proceed to trial 8 if we are going forward.

9 Mr. Wey, I do want to make sure that you understand 10 that sometimes things happen in cases, defendants ask for new 11 lawyers to come in. Matters such as that I'll be open to any 12 requests, but with the understanding now that anyone new who 13 comes into the case or any other related requests are done with 14 the understanding that anyone who comes into the case must work 15 with the schedule that we set today.

16 Okay, Mr. Wey?

17 THE DEFENDANT: Thank you, your Honor. I understand.
18 Thank you.

19 THE COURT: Thank you.

20 We have got a date for the superseding indictment, 21 motion schedule, and trial date.

22 Then let me ask Ms. McCallum.

23 MS. MCCALLUM: Your Honor, the government asks that 24 the court exclude time until the trial date in the interest of 25 justice for all the reasons that the court has articulated to

FCDSWEYC

1 permit the parties to prepare for motions and for trial.

2 THE COURT: Mr. Siegal?

3 MR. SIEGAL: No objection, your Honor.

4 THE COURT: I do find that the ends of justice served 5 by granting the exclusion from speedy trial computations for 6 the period from today's date through March 6, 2017 outweigh the 7 interest of the public and the defendant in a speedy trial.
8 This time is necessary for the completion of production of 9 discovery materials, time for the defense to manage and review 10 those voluminous discovery materials, time for the defendant to 11 consider and prepare any motions, as well as time for the 12 parties to continue their negotiations with respect to any 13 additional anticipated motions, time for the court to resolve 14 any such motions, and in the absence of any resolution of the 15 case, time for the parties to prepare for trial.

16 Ms. McCallum, anything else I can address at this 17 time?

18 MS. MCCALLUM: Nothing from the government, your 19 Honor.

20 THE COURT: Mr. Siegal?

21 MR. SIEGAL: One moment, your Honor.

22 Nothing, your Honor.

23 THE COURT: I think the only other thing to propose 24 would be a status conference. I think what we will do is, I 25 will set a date for a status letter at the time that we have

FCDSWEYC

1 indicated. Two months' time would be my proposal, time 2 indicated for the filing of the superseding indictment, if that 3 is going to happen. You can provide me a status update in that 4 letter, or if the parties would like a further conference to 5 discuss any issues that are arising or the schedule, simply 6 request that in a letter.

7 Two months from today, February 15, which will be the 8 date for the superceding indictment, if it will be filed, and a 9 joint status letter from the parties indicating if you would 10 like a conference scheduled sooner after to discuss any issues 11 that are developing.

12 If there is nothing further, we are adjourned. Thank 13 you.
